Special thanks to Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah, for providing secretarial, computer, and editorial services and research support. The author gratefully acknowledges the assistance of Kirsha Quigley, his BYU student secretary. Melvin J. Thorne, associate teaching professor, Department of Linguistics and English Language, Brigham Young University, and Victoria Blanchard, student editorial assistant, Brigham Young University's faculty editing service, were especially helpful in reading the manuscript and offering editing suggestions. The author would like to thank the Religious Studies Center staff for their assistance with the production of this book—Richard D. Draper, Charlotte A. Pollard, Devan Jensen, and Carmen Cole, typesetter. Research for this volume was partially funded by Brigham Young University's Religious Studies Center and Brigham Young University's Department of Church History and Doctrine.
