

ABOUT THE AUTHORS

Richard E. Turley Jr. serves as managing director of the Public Affairs Department of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Previously he served as assistant Church historian and recorder, managing director of the Church Historical Department, and managing director of the Family History Department.

Clinton D. Christensen has worked for the Church History Department since 2001. He earned a BA and MA in English from Brigham Young University and a master of library and information science and archival administration from Wayne State University in Detroit, Michigan. He is part of the Global Support and Acquisitions Division and has spent most of his career collecting Church history in Latin America and the Caribbean.