

Index

[Note from the editors: In creating this index, the editors have worked diligently to provide a thorough listing of names and important events within the diaries for future research. This has been a challenge for several reasons. Card's own spelling often obscures identity. He was a man on the move who knew people, places, and events. He assumed that the reader was also familiar with them. He used initials and abbreviations common to himself, which could have multiple interpretations in today's context. He was a man hunted by U.S. marshals, and during this period abbreviations, nicknames, and oblique references were common. So the reader is counseled to look liberally for alternative spellings, cross-references, and alternative topical citations throughout.]
